Are you straining your back, neck, shoulders and hands lifting plywood, drywall and other heavy sheet goods?

You don't need to any more...

The Gorilla Gripper is a brand new, essential hand tool that's ideal for gripping... lifting...and carrying a wide variety of construction industry building materials. Materials that are typically large, unwieldy and heavy...like panels of plywood, particle board, drywall, melamine, MDF, glass, granite, marble—and more.

As you well know, these materials are typically four feet high and eight feet or more in length...cumbersome and often quite heavy, too. Yet even so, they need to be individually moved, hand-loaded on trucks and hand-carried to their final destination at job sites, inside buildings, into basements, up to high ceilings, and even on to roof tops.

Here's how it works! The Gorilla Gripper simply slips over the top edge of panels. Three models: 0 to 3/4", 3/8 to 1-1/8", 1-1/4 to 2". With one hand on the handle, your arm bent to an upright position, and the panel resting on the outside of your arm, bend your knees slightly to get under the handle, keeping your back straight and untorqued! Then straighten your legs, lifting the handle and the panel, as the two plates compress against it to grip with a force proportional to the weight of the material being lifted. It's easy, saves the back and makes the panel material feel much lighter then when trying to lift it by hand! You'll be amazed and truly thankful to have the leverage and balancing advantages of a Gorilla Gripper.

The Gorilla Gripper significantly reduces stress and potential injuries to your back, shoulders, neck, hands and fingers. Don't be on a job site without it! Use it once...and you'll use it forever!
